

Please read the beginning of the following story and complete it by writing in full sentences. Be AS creative as you like – there are no right or wrong ways to complete the story.

The university has put in place software that can detect plagiarism in students' work products. Mr. Eli gives an essay assignment to his undergraduate Anthropology class and runs his students' essays through the software. Two students' papers are flagged as questionable. Mr. Eli approaches these students, named Lucas and Dante.

How does Mr. Eli feel? What does he do? What happens next?

What would you do in this situation?
Discuss with your peers.

After answering this question, explore another privacy case!

Please read the beginning of the following story and complete it by writing in full sentences. Be creative as you like – there are no right or wrong ways to complete the story.

Steve uses a dating app to find partners. One day, he hears on the news that hackers have broken into the app developer's archives and have posted many users' details online, including their names, profiles and dating histories.

How does Steve feel? What does he do? What happens next?

What would you do in this situation?
Discuss with your peers.

After answering this question, explore another privacy case!

Please read the beginning of the following story and complete it by writing in full sentences. Be creative as you like – there are no right or wrong ways to complete the story.

Tulpesh doesn't use the Apple Maps app on his smartphone, but it starts sending him notifications about traffic on his way to work that demonstrates that the app has collected information about where he works and the route that he travels.

How does Tulpesh feel? What does he do? What happens next?

What would you do in this situation?
Discuss with your peers.

After answering this question, explore another privacy case!

Please read the beginning of the following story and complete it by writing in full sentences. Be creative as you like – there are no right or wrong ways to complete the story.

Lily has recently converted to Buddhism after returning from a trip to Tibet. Although she is a regular user of Tik Tok and Instagram, she has decided not to post anything about her recent conversion on social media. One day, however, a notification pops up, informing Lily that her best friend, one of the few people she had shared the news with, has posted a picture of Lily with the caption “world’s coolest Buddhist” on her Instagram feed.

How does Lily feel? What does she do? What happens next?

What would you do in this situation?
Discuss with your peers.

After answering this question, explore another privacy case!

Please read the beginning of the following story and complete it by writing in full sentences. Be creative as you like – there are no right or wrong ways to complete the story.

Jean is participating in the school competition for the best social media post made by a student. After he publishes his post for the competition, he hears a rumor about a classmate who had gone around paying people to “like” his post for the competition.

How does Jean feel? What does he do? What happens next?

What would you do in this situation?
Discuss with your peers.

After answering this question, explore another privacy case!

Please read the beginning of the following story and complete it by writing in full sentences. Be creative as you like – there are no right or wrong ways to complete the story.

Malick regularly posts on a discussion website using a pseudonym. One day, he hears on the news that hackers have broken into the site developer's archives and have posted many users' details online, including their names, profiles, and posts.

How does Malick feel? What does he do? What happens next?

What would you do in this situation?
Discuss with your peers.

After answering this question, explore another privacy case!

Please read the beginning of the following story and complete it by writing in full sentences. Be creative as you like – there are no right or wrong ways to complete the story.

Lena has been feeling unusually sad and anxious and wonders what's wrong. She goes online and browses the Internet, searching for information about what might be causing her to feel this way. The next time she logs on to Facebook, her feed is full of ads for mindfulness apps and yoga retreats.

How does Lena feel? What does she do? What happens next?

What would you do in this situation?
Discuss with your peers.

After answering this question, explore another privacy case!